OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The New York Tribune.—The Philadelphia (Pa.) Saturday Evening Post says:—"Long and well known as a true likeness of the Author of Poor Richard, is the following from the Boston Post:—"In the heat and front of the Journals of New York, without moderation, place the New York Tribune. Their way, perhaps, he thought a strong one, but we cannot think its practice is good. It is a paper that presents many startling merits, was one of the least discount can fail to discover of the least candor who will just acknowledge, we are well aware that it sometimes takes ground and expresses opinions not at once always in unison with the public, yet perhaps in the end—but yet its history, and the time has but to be good, for the most part, those grounds and those opinions to be correct. It has shown that it has sensible judgment and sagacity, and that, while its views, and its doctrines may sometimes, for an hour, seem wild and visionary, they soon are found to be substantial and slightly above the general plane.

Among such characteristics of the Tribune are shown, namely, power, honesty, candor, and independence.

The talents of the Tribune are marked by good sense, sagacity, position, transparency, good temper, and a great deal, good humor. They always read the lively sections of men of experience, of strong sense, and are particularly are possessed of a sound judgment, candor and courtesy, though sometimes a little sarcastic, and, if an opponent is in error, it does not make some compliments and leniency to the erring and person will make, the point, yet it is in a character and by the most signal ability and skill, quickly, carry more weight and consequence with the country than any other journal in America.

The New York Tribune.—This powerful journal, which is a special fountain of thought and opinion, is an impartial political and literary news full of the spirit of the Goddess. The Tribune is every where and everywhere, and is the chief of the fight. THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1851.

Enthusiastic reception of Gen. Scott at Cincinnati.

It is gratifying cheering at a time when there is so strong a evinced a disposition to cut down and belittle the true patriots of the country, the men of mind and of might, and whose influence has been woven into the web of the history of our country in golden threads, to find an instance of generous, noble and devoted enthusiasm in which the people, without distinction of party, confer their spontaneous and whole-hearted meed of praise to one whose fame rests upon a life of solid devotion to the interests of the country, and whose brilliant achievements have been made known to the whole civilized world. Such an instance we find in the reception which Genl Winfield Scott received from the people of Cincinnati on the occasion of his recent visit to that city on his tour for the selection of suitable sites for Military Asylums.

After the announcement that the General would visit the city, there was no time for a formal reception by the machinery of committees; but as the boat approached at an early hour, the booming of artillery announced the fact, and the people by thousands on their sands rushed to the landing and lined the shores and blocked up every avenue. As the boat approached the shore and the eager multitude were anxious to get a glimpse of the venerable patriot and war-worn hero, General Scott raised his military cap, when his tall and manly form,—he being nearly six feet and six inches in height,—was distinctly seen, when the warm and gratified cheers of fifteen thousand people filled the air with an enthusiastic and worthy welcome. He was immediately pressed upon by anxious thousands with extended hands to seize his hands in a token of the highest regards. It was an hour of noble reward—the free gift of an intelligent and patriotic people to one who had rendered the history of the country illustrious, and who still held their entire confidence.

The Cincinnati Gazette says that the General, after recognizing the enthusiasm of this voluntary reception from the people, proceeded from the boat to a hack, and was conveyed to the Burnet House, followed by an immense crowd of citizens eager for a sight of the great chief whose battles have won him a reputation world-wide and time enduring. Here he was received by Mr. Coleman in a befitting manner, and after a few moments repose, he was called upon the terrace to receive the congratulations of the multitude who were there and desired to see him. He advanced and briefly and pertinently thanked the citizens assembled for the appreciated evidences of approbation and favor by which he was welcomed.

Retiring to a private parlor, several ladies were introduced, who were received with great politeness by the brave old chief, who evinced that he was as familiar with the graces of the drawing room as the dangers of the battle field. He was now surrounded by all classes of citizens, young and old, who grasped his hand, and with whom he conversed familiarly.

At half-past ten o'clock two military companies paraded on Vine street, in front of the Burnet House. The General appeared in the open window and made a short speech expressive of his gratitude for the military compliment paid him on that occasion. He then withdrew to the reception room, where he was completely wedged in by the immense crowd which pressed upon him wherever he could be found. The enthusiasm continued unabated during the day.

The General appears to be in excellent keeping. His height is about six feet four inches and a half—weight two hundred and forty pounds. His figure is full and well developed—head not large, but well shaped—hair grey and slightly thin. He speaks distinctly and evinces the greatest urbanity of manner in his intercourse with those around him.

Such and similar are the rewards which the people should at all fitting times be ready to bestow upon her heroes and her patriots. We rejoice in it as a free expression of the voice of the people at an interesting period in the history of the country and the sentiment of the people. We hail it as a return to that better period when causes of approval and not of complaint—when points of agreement and not points of difference, shall be sought and cherished, and the true normal state of the public mind shall take the place of morbid action.

☞ One of our young friends, John P. Hallson of Mr. William Hall, the President of the Mechanics' Association, has kept a record of the snow storms for the last winter and of the quantity of snow which has fallen. The results are as follows: twenty snow storms, in which snow to the depth of five feet and ten inches has fallen. The heaviest fall of snow was on the 23d of December, when fourteen inches fell.

Legislative Paper.

The proprietor of the Augusta Age has issued proposals for publishing at Augusta, during the session of the legislature, commencing in May, a tri-weekly paper at one dollar for the session, subscriptions paid in advance. A paper of this kind is very convenient in order to keep posted up in legislative proceedings.

☞ Mr. John Roundy of this city, over sixty years of age, has just returned from California in good health and full of life. He enjoyed his visit to California very much—likes the country—says he found nobody who could endure mining with him, and if he can muster a company of five or six who can work as hard as he can, he means to return and get a pile. The old gentleman's friends think he has renewed his age by about twenty years!

Concert this Evening.

The Citizen's Band propose giving a popular Concert at the City Hall this evening, assisted by Mr. J. Lyon, the popular vocalist, and by Mr. Brewer, the accomplished performer on the Melodeon. The merits of their last concert, if nothing else, should secure for the Band a full house this evening.

New York Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier:

NEW YORK, April 16.

A very interesting ceremony took place on Friday evening last in the Brick Church (Presbyterian) in this city. It was that very rare thing, a Jew's recantation of the Christ-denying faith of his fathers.

The convert was a fine looking, intelligent, middle-aged gentleman, and his responses to the articles of confession of faith in Jesus Christ as the only begotten Son of God and Saviour of men, were pronounced in deep, decided tones. After the solemn act of recantation of Judaism, he together with one other person, knelt at the font, and Jew and Gentile were baptized in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

We all know how seldom it is in these latter days for Jews to renounce their creed. This would be less a matter of wonder if Christianity were as persecuted and unpopular now as it was in its infancy. But the Jews are a peculiar people. Salvation is of the Jews—a quotation frequently in the mouth of the venerable pastor who baptized the convert last Friday. Their early history, and their great men, Moses and the Prophets, are themes which he loves and reverees and frequently expatiates upon. He often alludes too to their scattered and depressed condition at the present time, and yet he says, even now they hold the purse-strings of the world.

Other people are prone to fall in with the religious customs and outward observances of the mass around them, and like the Yankee representative in the State legislature "follers go with the crowd;" but the Jews, though scattered, as it were, by the power of Heaven all over the earth, as never people were scattered before, and as never people shall be scattered again, have not lost a whit of their religious and national individuality. A colony in the torrid zone (placed there the Lord only knows how,) may be blackened by a tropical sun, but their features, their customs, their exclusiveness, their religion, will be Jewish still. In Russia, in craven and tyrannical Austria, in France, in Great Britain, in America, the Jews know no amalgation and no affiliation with the other inhabitants. Popular prejudice and acts of political disability may bear hard upon them, but social humiliation cannot make them forget their sublime origin, or induce a desire to obtain favor by intermarrying with their oppressors, or take one jot of their contempt for the Christians. The world over—on the Bourse of Paris, on London 'Change, on the Quay of Holland, on the rialto of Venice—in Lombard street and Chatham square—the Jew is a Jew still. Put him in a mill, and grind him over, and he would yet be a Jew and nothing shorter.

If there be any inelegance in the last sentence, please attribute it to an interruption from my drayman, who is complaining strongly against the law by which he was taken from his work last week and made to serve on a jury without compensation. He admits, I believe, that the juror is allowed a shilling for every verdict he renders. This is done, I presume, to make them "hurry up the cakes"—verdict I should have said—and not oblige the Judge to "eat his mutton cold."

The drayman thinks this precious hard, when he can get two and sixpence for a smaller load on his cart than such hasty decisions loads his conscience with. Besides, he could cart a dozen loads of merchandise while a well paid lawyer is making a single plea. In Boston, he thinks that they have much more bowels for laboring men, inasmuch as the jurors' fees there range from one to two dollars per day. The same honest drayman, however, sets high on the advantages which the poor man's children in New York enjoy in the matter of education. The Boston public schools open free, the path, he says, but the New York institutions have caught up and gone ahead, for here the children not only get free tuition for nothing, even in the higher branches, but their school books are thrown in (which is not the case in Boston) and every week they draw their rations of pens, pencils, paper, &c. In the admission of boys from the common schools to the Free High School, (a sort of College) the inquiry into qualifications is very rigid, and hundreds of boys, annually, won't pass muster and are rejected, but it is all done fair and square, says the drayman, and my boys, he adds with a chuckle, stand as good a chance as the grand-children of John Jacob Astor. My boy Tom, quoth he, with parental pride, is in the High School now, studying Algebra and mathematics!

Steamship Union, Capt. Budd, will leave for New Orleans to-morrow, with Stimson & Co's Package, Specie and Freight Express.

By the way, Stimson & Co. of the New Orleans and Mobile Express, have gone in with Messrs. Adams & Co., 72 Camp street, New Orleans. They have sent to the World's Fair a specimen of the newspapers of every State in the Union.

An Arkansas friend has been in to consult me in regard to the sale of some stock of that State. He is rather shy of the brokers, and suspects that one or two whom he is dealing with, are disposed to try the same game on him that Cryder, Jandon, and McKay put upon poor Flanders, the Treasurer of the Milwaukie and Mississippi Railroad. A man, to deal with the New York financiers, must have, like a crow, an eye on both sides of his head.

After all the fuss about Ray Tompkins' $75,000 operation, and the Milwaukie bond swindle, the culprits are likely to go unwhipt of justice.

Willis' suit against Edwin Forrest is expected to commence this week.

The British ship Blanchele now in the hands of the U. S. Marshal at New Orleans, and a suit for forfeiture will be forthwith entered against her. She brought nearly five hundred passengers from Liverpool, being nearly one hundred beyond the complement she was entitled to carry by law according to her admeasurement.

☞ Yesterday afternoon in the midst of the gale a fire broke out in Portland in sight of the Telegraph office.

☞ There was any quantity of rain and snow and sleet here yesterday afternoon.

The matter was brought before Parliament and in reply to inquiries put to members of the Cabinet assurances were given that the government was prepared for any emergency.

HOLLINGSHEAD, FETLEY & Co's COTTON CIRCULAR. LIVERPOOL, April 4th. Without being able to assign any particular cause unless it was that the accounts from the United States received on Monday last, were less decisive regarding the question of crop and its extent than was anticipated, our cotton market has been contrary to expectation in a dull and somewhat depressed condition, and this not arising from want of demand as the trade being without stock buy regularly to about the extent of consumption, and in addition there has been a fair amount of business daily on speculation, and for export, but it has been owing entirely to the large quantity offering by importers and the great desire evinced to effect sales, which has held to a decline in the value of American descriptions of fully ¼d per lb, at which decline, however, holders are pretty firm and show no disposition to give way further.

300 bales American, 110 Buenam, 300 Madras and 1000 Surat have been taken on speculation, with 1800 American, 100 Brazil 750 Surat and 590 Madras for export, leaving for the trade 29670 bales; the sales of the day are 5000 bales.

SECOND DESPATCH.

ENGLAND.

Mr. Hume moved to reduce the vote by 1,621,000 and to grant £3,000,000 on account of the amendment was negatived. All the ordinary and extraordinary votes were then carried.

On the 1st, Mr. Wortley, inquired of the Secretary of State whether his attention had been called to the proceedings of certain foreigners who were conspiring with certain of her Majesty's subjects to make demonstrations dangerous to the public tranquility, was replied to by Sir George Grey that the attention of government had been and continued to be directed to the important matter, measures had been taken and precautions sanctioned by the law, sufficient, he believed, to prevent any attempt to disturb the tranquility of that country. The proceedings of the parties referred to were closely observed and obedience to the laws would be enforced.

An attempt to liberalise the franchise was voted down on the 2d.

Petitions continued to pour into the Commons on Papal aggressions.

The Budget came up for discussion on the evening of the 5th. The Chancellor of the Exchequer saw no reason why he would offer his estimates of the year's incomes. His proposal for dealing with the surplus had been violently assailed, and every kind of reduction of taxation had been demanded of him, with many of these demands it was most unadvisable to comply.

He had already assisted in securing for the great body of the people cheap food and cheap clothing, and he now sought to improve their dwellings, and with this view he had reduced the duty on bricks last year, and had this year proposed the reduction on that of foreign lumber and windows.

The telegraphic lines worked very badly yesterday and last evening, and at this point the despatch was abruptly closed, the news having been repeated at Sackville and at this office.

☞ Both lines of telegraph were down between Portland and Boston last evening.

[From the N. Y. Sun.]

Important from Africa.

In a late number of the Philadelphia Colonization Herald, we find some interesting facts on the exploration of Africa. The Rev. Mr. Thompson, who went to Africa two years ago, to settle with the Amistad Africans,—lately passed up the Big Boom river for a distance of 3000 miles. This noble stream is nearly a mile wide in some places. Mr. T. was the happy instrument of stopping a war of nine years' duration among the tribes around the Kaw Mendi, which is about 100 miles south of Sierra Leone, and 50 from the coast. He made an arrangement, to the great delight of the chiefs, for establishing a mission at the furthest point he reached. Sierra Leone is on the west coast, and immediately north of Liberia, both lying between 10 degrees north latitude and the equator.

In South Africa, Mr Livingston, of Kolobeng, situated 25 degrees south latitude, and 26 degrees east longitude, north of Kaffirland, lately resolved to explore the Great Southern Zahara or Desert, which, stretching away on the west, north-west, and north, has hitherto presented an insurmountable barrier to Europeans. He proceeded six hundred miles into the interior, with a wagon, and several companions, without molestation. After traveling three hundred miles, they struck the Tonga river, and traced it up 300 miles more, till they came to the great lake Ngami, or "Great Water." They found large rivers entering the Tonga from the north. The narrowest part of the Tonga, seen by them, was sixty yards wide. The lake is about 70 miles long by 20 broad. Mr L. gives many interesting facts, and reports the natives everywhere anxious to receive missionaries.—In a subsequent journey he discovered another large lake, about 300 miles north of Lake Ngami. The new lake contains several large islands, and is connected with the Ngami by a rapid stream called the Teage. At the close of the last advices, Mr L. was proceeding northward.

Messrs. Simpson and Mackay have made several explorations of the Gaboon district, which is on the west coast, near the equator. They also visited the Corisco and Ilavi Islands on the coast, and represent them as beautiful and prosperous. The Rev. John Day, superintendent of the Baptist mission at Bexley, has been examining the upper part of the St. John's river. He found an undulating country, beautiful rills of clear cold water, and superb forests of valuable woods; and declares that if our people want health, they may as surely obtain it in these high regions as by transatlantic trips.—"The natives are more stout, cheerful, industrious, honest, and every way hopeful, than any on the coast."

The missionaries of South Africa are constantly extending their knowledge of the interior. They have passed through portions of the Zulu country. In some places it was fertile and beautiful, with vegetation luxuriant; in others the land was barren, with not a tree to be seen for miles. The chief food of the inhabitants is milk, rice and sweet potatoes. In one place a party of travelers came to the kraal of one of the principal Zulu chiefs, styled by the natives Fa Corran, and were hospitably entertained for four days. A cup-bearer figured at the festive board, reminding the travelers of Pharaoh and the kings of ancient times—a tall, stalwart native, whose head was bound with a large blue shawl, in Oriental style. Large crops of millies, sweet potatoes, and Caffri corn were seen, as well as immense quantities of sugar cane.

Dr. Beke has been making long explorations on the Egyptian side of Africa. He expects that the missionary efforts for that part of Africa will have their centre in the region of Uniamesi, or "of the moon." Among these mountains, Dr. Beke saw a volcano in an active state. In the same region he found there was a vast lake named Usambiro. Some of the mountain peaks are above the snow line, glittering in perpetual whiteness.

THOMAS BICKFORD,

Kenduskeag Fish Market,

WISHES to call attention to the subject of Fish. Fresh Fish, all supplies are sought from the laughing waters of the river and brought from the ocean wave that chants the dirge of Nature's anthem. His arrangements are so arranged for a supply of FRESH FISH and Fish. He means to take every means of rapid conveyance to supply his customers with so necessary and delicious an article for the table. He has renovated and refitted his market rooms, and is now prepared to do a large business and to make the Fresh Fish Market of this city equal to any in the State, and in some varieties altogether superior. His vaults and freezing closets will be put to require so as to enable him to furnish at all times the best of Fresh Fish. Tavern Keepers, Steamboat Stewards, those keeping boarders, and gentlemen who fishes will find the arrangements of the present season such as they can approve and which will prove a great convenience to them.

The Wonder of the Age!
BEWARE OF IMPOSITION!
The Only Genuine and Original
IS THE
NORTH AMERICAN ELECTRIC
WASHING FLUID,
For Washing in either Hard or Soft Water
THIS is the only genuine article to be found in the world and possesses double the power of anything ever discovered for washing clothes at a trifling expense Doing away with washboards at once In fact it seems to be the long sought philosopher's stone or universal solvent seeming magical preparation its operation being of the most astonishing character A common sized wash may be done with one gill of the Fluid unless than two hours It softens and removes the dirt leaving it as white as the most of Bank whiteness it being as harmless in its operations as pure water and clothing will wear much longer than where rubbed to pieces by the common method of washing
This Fluid is a powerful agent to be used in all cases where soap is required particularly for cleansing milk utensils cleaning windows and paint scouring floors in short its use is beyond a precedent and is universal in the washing world
N B—All Colored Goods are rendered brighter by being washed in this Fluid All Woollens are less liable to shrink and thereby rendered much softer than in the old way of washing
None genuine unless the Labels contain their Signature
The above article is warranted by the Manufacturers not to contain soda lime camphene burning fluid or acids of any kind but to be purely an alkalino preparation of the most powerful character possessing more than double the washing power of any thing ever discovered being perfectly harmless in vapor without possessing the caustic properties of the miserable articles which flood the market and in many instances disgust the people to that degree that they are unwilling to try a good article when it really is to be found The proprietors only ask a fair trial of their article and are perfectly willing to forfeit any amount for a single failure in any instance where it is used

THE GENUINE BALM OF COLUMBIA

IF you wish a rich, luxuriant head of hair free from dandruff and dust, do not fail to procure the genuine Balm of Columbia. In cases of baldness it will more than exceed your expectations. Many who have lost their hair for twenty years have had it restored to its original perfection by the use of this balm. Age, state or condition appears to be no obstacle whatever; it is so unlike the fluid to flow with which the delicate hair tubes are filled by which means thousands (whose hair was gray as the Aristocracy) have had their hair restored to its natural color by this invaluable remedy. In all cases of fever it will be found the most pleasant wash that can be used. A few applications only are necessary to keep the hair from falling out. It strengthens the roots, it never fails to impart a rich glossy appearance, and as a perfume for the toilet it is unequaled. It holds three times as much as other mixtures called hair restoratives and is more effectual.

☞ Caution—Never buy it unless you find the name of Comstock & Co on the wrapper of each bottle or you are deceived with a counterfeit article.
